

Julie Barry:

I've spent my entire career at HM Land Registry working in a wide variety of operational and non-operational roles and I've worked on a number of ground breaking, innovative projects aimed at improving the conveyancing and registration processes in England and Wales. For the past ten years my role has been to collaborate with partners in the UK government, third sector and private sectors to help with the development of sustainable land registration systems overseas. Since 2010 I've been a member of the UNECE Working Party on Land Administration, speaking at conferences, leading and participating in projects. In 2013, I was a member of a team of land administration experts put together by UNECE to provide advice to an overseas government.

I've been a Board member of EULIS (European Land Information Service) since 2010.

I have an 18 year old son who is studying at university in London. I live near London and enjoy walking, tennis and reading.
